Health Rest Mattress

Driven by our purpose of 'Improving Lives Through Better Sleep', we have created the Health Rest range, to ensure that Australians can enjoy the quality rest they deserve – no matter what their stage of life. The A.H. Beard Health Rest range is proudly manufactured in Australia using quality components.

At the heart of each mattress are OEKO-TEX® certified, proven pressure-relieving comfort components. They are made using the world's most advanced technology that is cleaner, greener, and better for the environment.

Antimicrobial treated foams and covers provide long term protection against allergens and bacteria, earning approval from the National Asthma Council Australia's Sensitive Choice program.

Key Features

Water Resistant Cover

Water-resistant, removable Mediplus cover with water-resistant zippers provide optimum infection control. Designed to withstand regular cleaning.

Proven Pressure Relief

Hygroflex is a new foam material that offers the immersion and envelopment features of memory foam combined with the recovery rate of high resilience foam.

Results show that Hygroflex, when compared to traditional memory foams, had greater pressure redistribution, greater heat dispersion, enabled easier movement, and significantly faster recovery.

Antimicrobial Protection

A.H. Beard foams are CompriShield® treated for anti-microbial protection and our mattress covers feature Fresche® antimicrobial additive in the coating formulation of the cover.

Fresche® coating delivers durable, persistent microbial control that doesn't leach from the surface onto which it is applied.

Adjustable Base Compatible

We understand that a good night's sleep is about more than just a mattress. That's why each A.H. Beard Health Rest mattress is adjustable base compatible, with a weight capacity of up to 300kg per base.

Hygroflex vs. Traditional Memory Foam

An independent clinical study conducted at Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology (RMIT) Melbourne by the School of Engineering, and supported by the Australian Government Department of Industry, Innovation and Science, examined the effectiveness of Hygroflex comfort foam.

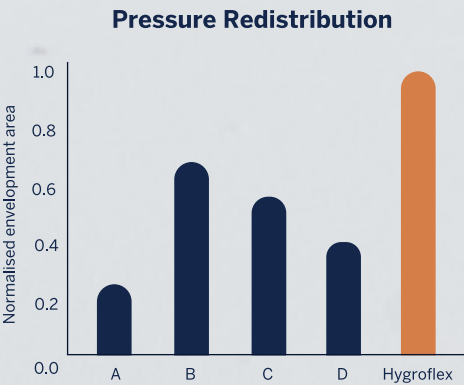

Results show that Hygroflex when compared to traditional memory foam, provides:

Greater pressure redistribution

Hygroflex has 30% greater envelopment area than traditional memory foam. High envelopment allows pressure to redistribute more evenly and over a larger surface.

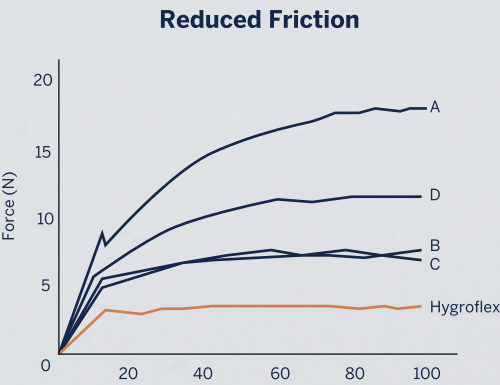

This translates into increased comfort levels and a lower risk of developing pressure ulcers.

Easier movement

Completing a full rotation on Hygroflex requires minimal force – 50% less energy than conventional memory foams.

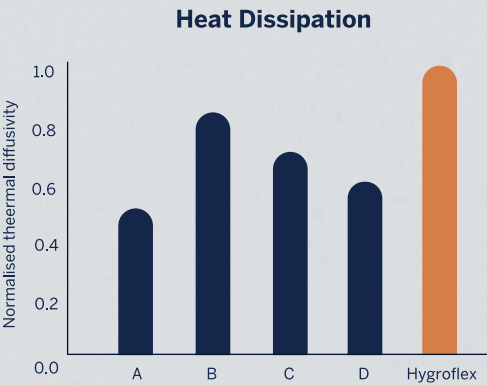

Low resistance to rolling motions allows easy movement on the mattress and reduces friction and stress on the skin.

Greater heat dispersion

Hygroflex has a 12-27% greater thermal diffusivity coefficient than traditional memory foams, allowing heat and moisture to dissipate more effectively.

When body heat is applied to a mattress, the heat energy will diffuse through Hygroflex faster than other memory foams.

Significantly faster recovery

Hygroflex is responsive and returns to its original shape faster than traditional memory foams. Lower hysteresis results in less resistance when attempting to move, meaning the energy applied during loading is exerted back when unloading.

Low hysteresis foams have been linked to higher comfort levels and better sleep efficiency.

Health Rest Mattress Pressure Mapping Results

The A.H. Beard Health Rest Collection was tested using a medical grade smart bed pressure sensor. The results show that Hygroflex is more effective for pressure relief versus traditional memory foam.

1 Durability testing simulating normal use over an 8-10-year period resulted in a total height loss of approximately 1% and a hardness loss of less than 7% (on the medium feel mattress).

The 6 Essential Features TO CONSIDER BEFORE INVESTING IN A MATTRESS

We spend a third of our lives lying on a product that can have a significant impact on our health and wellbeing.

It can affect our moods, mental alertness, energy levels and even our relationships. Given the importance of a mattress in our lives, it's remarkable that so few people know what to look for when choosing one. As a manufacturer with over a century's experience, we believe it comes down to these six essentials, which combine to create the ideal mattress for healthy, restorative sleep.

- 1. It just feels right
A mattress is a very personal choice, and first impressions are important. To the touch, it should feel soft and comforting with a reassuring sense of quality. When you find the right mattress, it should feel like a place you'll want to return, night after night, year after year.
- 2. All-over comfort
Never buy a mattress without first lying on it in the showroom - and take your time. As you recline, the combination of components in the mattress should form a comfort layer that gently conforms to your body's curves, helping to relieve pressure, prevent discomfort and keep you relaxed from dusk till dawn.
- 3. All-night support
Comfort will get you to sleep, but it's support that will keep you asleep. Enquire about the mattress's support system and how it creates the perfect posture for your body to rest, recover and rejuvenate, regardless of your sleeping position.
- 4. A healthy sleep environment
When choosing a mattress, be sure that it doesn't include anything potentially harmful to you or your sleep. A quality mattress should contain antimicrobial fabrics, fibres or treatments that minimise the growth of mould, dust mites and other harmful bacteria that may affect your ability to breathe and rest easy.
- 5. Don't be disturbed
If you sleep with a partner, child, or pet, choose a mattress that minimises the transfer of their movements.
- 6. Temperature regulating
Variations in temperature can cause us to wake from being too hot or too cold. Look for a mattress with internal components that help encourage breathability and airflow to help draw heat away from the body and disperse it.
